CEPA recommendations based on assessment of preparedness of local government to implement the SDGs

Analysis of challenges and identifying policy solutions at administrative and functional scale is required

The coordination of policies across administrative boundaries will help to optimize the interlinkages between cities and between rural and urban areas.

Establishing integrity measures like anti-corruption initiatives can boost freedom of information

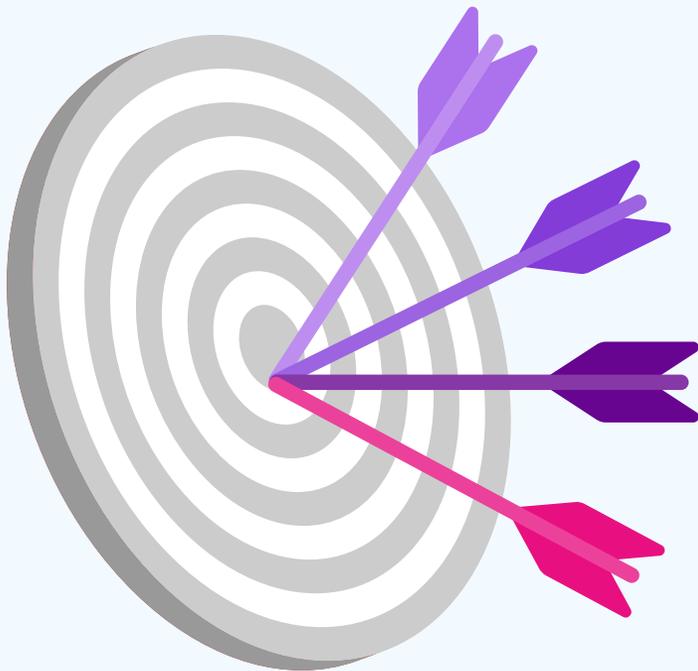

Whistle-blower protection and a merit-based system can help remove inequalities and discrimination practices within government.

Empowering and engaging young people by mainstreaming integrity, equality and ethical behaviour in education are essential.

Providing technical and financial support to strengthen the ability of civil society organizations to establishing a standard framework for measuring the degree of public satisfaction at local levels.

Strengthening efforts to promote transparency, access to information, open local governance and digital transformation and to address digital divides

Promoting participatory approaches, in particular in budgeting can help to build trust in local public institutions, and engaging citizens and communities at the subnational level.
